

AcuSport Seminar Series LLC presents:

Excess (Shi) and Deficient (Xu) Pain Patterns in the Upper Extremity: Nerve Entrapment Syndromes

Course Objectives:

- The practitioner taking this course will learn meridian topography and how it relates to the brachial plexus and nerve pathways of the upper extremity.
- Discussion of nerve entrapment sites at the spine and from soft tissue indurations creates regions of Qi and Blood stagnation (Qi Zhi Xue Yu) producing excess (shi) and deficient (xu) pain and paresthesia patterns distal from the entrapment site.
- Common nerve entrapment syndromes will be reviewed including cervical degeneration, thoracic outlet syndrome, ulnar nerve entrapment at the elbow and wrist, supinator and pronator teres syndromes as well as carpal tunnel syndrome.
- Specific injuries will be discussed in relation to common TCM patterns. Relevant orthopedic physical evaluations and manual muscle tests will be demonstrated to assess the integrity of the musculoskeletal system.
- Innovative treatment protocols will be introduced consisting of needle techniques to the involved motor and acupuncture points to balance the somatic system according to both TCM and western biomedical principles.
- Syndrome specific stretches and rehabilitative exercises will be demonstrated and practiced.
- The experience of this workshop will refine your assessment and treatment skills, expand your knowledge of needle techniques and improve your success in treating common entrapment problems found in clinical practice.
